

This week has flown by, especially since it was a bank holiday Monday, so it is a shorter newsletter this week. With only another two weeks left until the next school holiday, we still have so much to pack in!

Pupils in year 6 have been focussed on last minute revision for the SATs tests which begin on Monday. They have been amazing and so have the Year 6 staff. We are hoping for lovely weather on Friday for the traditional end of SATS week water fight!

This morning, a selection of Year 3 pupils enjoyed taking part in a special craft session to be part of a new exhibition entitled HIDDEN which is coming to St Peter Mancroft, in the centre of Norwich, from June 27th to August 31st. Admission is free. HIDDEN is an art installation from internationally renowned sculptor Peter Walker exploring the concept of what is unseen or concealed in the world around us. You can see examples of his previous installations in Churches and Cathedrals on his website: www.peterwalkersculptor.com.

Athletics club after school on Thursday has proved very popular – thank you to Mrs Eves and Mrs Whitmore for their joint efforts running it.

Finally, you may have noticed some new plants outside the front of the school? Mr Savage very kindly bought them for the school as a leaving present. Mr Bird has planted them along the perimeter blue fences and they include a selection of climbing plants such as passion flower and honeysuckle. These plants will be a beautiful addition to the school grounds and a thank you from all of us to Mr Savage will be on its way to him very soon.

Have a lovely restful weekend everyone and to all our Year 6 pupils sitting the tests next week - we are so proud of you and know that you will all do your very best. We wish you lots of luck!
